🟠 DOLPHINS (minor)

DOLPHINS

Two incidents involving dolphins have left a peculiar and indelible mark on my memory, not for the animals themselves, but for the uncanny way the symbol kept surfacing through other people.

1

The first occurred during my high school year in the dormitory. For three consecutive days, at said "You look like a dolphin."consistently. Not a compliment one typically encounters.

Not "I like your jacket" or "How are classes going?" – the ordinary currency of hallway small t passing.

2

The second incident, I hung out with a random guy from Tinder in person one day, and on a b was completely clean, not the faint scarring or residual pigment left behind by laser removal.

What followed was stranger. He flexed his bicep, claiming that when he tensed the muscle, it

(I have encountered a considerable range of human physiology, but I have never seen a bicep

- The absence of tattoo removal mark
- Dolphin shaped muscles

were unbelievable.

Q: Why was it necessary to forcefully make up an unbelievable story just to get the story acro

---

Interesting correlation with the above

I once went to a department store to buy Tempo Tissue (blue packaging) - which was on sale, and th random salesman compares you to his childhood sweetheart while selling a tissue? I realized a patte existing tattoo

There were other incidences that had the exact same "you remind me of my teenage/childhood cru which I now see the pattern (that correlated with the contract script) which I will be documenting for

...

Tempo Tissue (blue packaging)

https://imgs.search.brave.com/EDPQWnr9Yy6spv-nhzwDuxDZT-8WdkCpOeB0ebP8dc8/rs:fit:860:0:0:0/g:ce/aHR0cHM6Ly9iZWF1/dHl3YXlzLmNvbS8y/MjYzLWhvb